"The first and most important task for the jazz pianist is to produce chords. Jazz is a harmonically-based music ... This book will not emphasize the art of improvisation ... Rhythm is important too, but it is best learned by imitation and transcriptions ... chord progressions of tunes used in jazz are nearly always given in chord symbols, which the keyboard player is expected to decipher and arrange into an attractive chord voicing. As a new symbol will appear about every two to eight beats ... the pianist has to develop quick responses in order to find and play each chord within its assigned duration ..."--Introduction.

" ... The blues are a great vehicle for learning improvisation ... The blues is a vocal-and lyric-based music. It has always been about saying something. Whether ... singing, bending a guitar string, or striking a cluster of notes on the piano you're talking when you play the blues--and that is what soloing is all about ... beginner[s] or experienced musicians ... will find something inspirational in this book. [Students] new to the blues start on pages 5-12. Page 13 starts the soloing ... Each new concept will be accompanied by written and listening exercises ..."--Introduction
