Are you looking for the truth about quantum physics? Do you feel like quantum physics is intangible, unintelligible and unattainable? If you've answered yes to the above questions, then you are definitely in the right place and holding the right book! This book will help you to understand seemingly-complex concepts such as Schrödinger's cat, quantum entanglement, and the wave-particle duality. Fear not! I've written this book to specifically address how to best understand the complex world of quantum physics - a science that has more to do with your everyday life than you can imagine. Have you been to a grocery store and seen a bar scan? Of course you have! Quantum physics! How about LED lights on a Christmas tree? Quantum physics. The truth is: Quantum physics is all around us, all the time. And, its growth in the science community, technology, and how we live our lives is getting more and more prominent in our world. In this easy-to-read book, we will cover the basics of quantum physics so that you will be able to satiate your curiosity. Reading this book will provide you with insight into this revolutionary yet esoteric school of physics, that is soon going to take center stage. Technology is getting better, and it's due to our advancement in quantum physics. We can only go forward from here, so make sure you jump on the bandwagon before it leaves. Quantum physics is the next best thing since grilled cheese. You will never be lost in a conversation about quantum physics ever again, nor will you ever be lied to, because now that you have this book, the knowledge is within your reach. You will be able to understand quantum physics like never before! So, what are you waiting for? The beginning of your fantastic journey lies within this book.

China's Education Reform: Current Issues and New Horizons collects important research findings of education studies on China conducted by the academics at East China Normal University (ECNU) in recent years. The book covers topics including the rebuilding of contemporary Chinese education reform, the breakthrough of China's pedagogy, problems facing the education reform, and the ecological orientation of education technology, among others. This book is the fourth volume in the WSPC-ECNU Series on China. The WSPC-ECNU Series showcases the significant contributions to scholarship in social sciences and humanities studies about China. The Series is jointly launched by World Scientific Publishing, the most reputable English academic publisher in Asia, and ECNU, a top University in China with a long history of exchanges with the international academic community. As web-enabled mobile technologies become increasingly integrated into formal learning environments, the fields of education and ICT (information and communication technology) are merging to create a new kind of classroom: CrossActionSpaces. Grounding its exploration of these co-located communication spaces in global empirical research, Digital Didactical Designs facilitates the development of teachers into collaborative designers and evaluators of technology-driven teaching and learning experiences—learning through reflective making. The Digital Didactical Design model promotes deep learning expeditions with a framework that encourages teachers and researchers to study, explore, and analyze the applied designs-in-practice. The book presents critical views of contemporary education, theories of socio-technical systems and behavior patterns, and concludes with a look into the conceptual and practical prototypes that might emerge in schools and universities in the near future.

Clyde, who inconveniently shapeshifts into a monkey when he gets too excited, must use his monkey powers in order to save the school from a ghost that's been seen in the school's hallway.

The aim of this book is to bridge the widening gap between ongoing educational reforms and the lack of advances in knowledge, research and practice. Included is a description of new mechanisms in fields such as leadership, staff development and curriculum change.

Stamford Raffles, James Brooke, John Crawfurd and Anna Leonowens were some of those who came from Europe or the United States to Southeast Asia in the nineteenth century — and then wrote about what they saw. Their writings deserve to be read now for what they truly were: Not objective accounts of a Southeast Asia frozen in imperial time but rather as culturally myopic and perspectivist works that betray the subject-positions of the authors themselves. Reading them would allow us to write the history of the East-West encounter through critical lenses that demonstrate the workings of power-knowledge in the elaborate war-economy of racialised colonial-capitalism. Many of the tropes used by these colonial-era scholars and travellers, such as the indolence or savagery of the native population, are still very much in use today — which means we still live in the long shadow of the 19th century. In his latest book, internationally renowned educator and futurist Marc Prensky presents a compelling alternative to how and what we teach our children. Prensky argues that a routinely taught combination of mathematics, language arts, science, and social studies increasingly leaves the bulk of our students woefully unprepared for the future. Drawing on emerging world trends, he elaborates a comprehensive vision for K-12 education that includes new goals, new means, a new curriculum, a new kind of teaching, and a new use of technology. This is a book ultimately about developing young people's capacity to accomplish things that will make the world a better place, using means never before available. It offers an innovative and achievable vision for a Global
