The economy of a country forms the basis of the standard of living of its citizens. Economics requires deep study of demand, supply, fluctuations and the behaviour of money. But how does it work? This cannot be understood by people who do not have the right knowledge in the discipline. But economists are the intellectuals who can actually study, analyze and help in stabilizing the economy of the country. In order to make sure that those who form the framework of the country are best of all, hence, they should be taught by the best teachers. The making of such teachers is a rather difficult process and is followed by various stages of testing. National Testing Agency (NTA) conducts the entry-level examination for scholars who wish to pursue Economics as their subject. With us, at EduGorilla you will be aided with numerous UGC NET Economics practice tests 2020.

During the 2009-10 academic year, 1,444 8th grade students in the Canton City, Plain and Marlinton Local School Districts (hereafter called Stark students) took the EXPLORE Test as part of a pilot project, "Ready to Go: Increasing Eighth Grade Readiness," sponsored by the Stark Education Partnership with funding from the Ohio College Access Network. EXPLORE tests students on English, math, reading and science and measures progress towards college and career readiness through "College Readiness Standards." In addition to the test itself, questions in EXPLORE about career and post secondary plans were reviewed as well as data from pre and post surveys administered to parents, students, curriculum directors and teachers. There were seven major findings from the EXPLORE Test: (1) Stark County students in the aggregate are performing above the national average on all sections of EXPLORE; (2) Sub-group performance gaps on the basis of race are evident in EXPLORE; (3) Sub-group performance gaps on the basis of gender are evident with females outperforming males on all categories except mathematics. Both genders exceed "College Readiness Standards" on English with females also exceeding on reading; (4) The higher their EXPLORE score, the less indecision students show about post secondary education plans. Students with lower scores seem to select other post secondary options than college more often, such as training, apprenticeship or military; (5) Undecided, non-responsive and "other plans" answers aside, only a handful (less than 1%) of students see no need to finish high school or obtain further training; (6) Even without further interventions to accelerate progress, districts should see increases in their college going rates; and (7) Even without further interventions to accelerate progress, all districts should see increases in their average ACT Composite scores based on the current performance of this cohort of students. Seven findings from the surveys supported the effectiveness of EXPLORE as a college readiness intervention. These are: (1) In general, curriculum directors saw positive changes in teacher familiarity about the purpose and use of the EXPLORE Test; (2) There was growth in the percentage of students who considered it "very likely" that they would eventually get a college degree; (3) Students felt that they gained in knowledge about what coursework was necessary to succeed in college or the workplace; (4) A large percentage of parents in all three districts believe that their students will go on to college. This percentage increased from the fall to the spring administrations of the survey; (5) Cost was the primary reason why some parents thought it was not possible for their student to go on to college; (6) The majority of middle school faculty believed before and after EXPLORE that grades 6-8 is the time to start thinking about college; and (7) Faculty gained knowledge about high school success skills and EXPLORE's College Readiness Standards. The results of "Ready to Go: Increasing Eighth Grade Readiness" have demonstrated that the EXPLORE test can be a valuable middle school intervention to help prepare students for college and career readiness. Appended are: (1) Additional Response by Plain Local; and (2) Survey Instruments. (Contains 3 charts and 10 tables.) [Funding for this paper was provided through the Ohio College Access Network (OCAN).

With age-appropriate, inquiry-centered curriculum materials and sound teaching practices, middle school science can capture the interest and energy of adolescent students and expand their understanding of the world around them. Resources for Teaching Middle School Science, developed by the National Science Resources Center (NSRC), is a valuable tool for identifying and selecting effective science curriculum materials that will engage students in grades 6 through 8. The volume describes more than 400 curriculum titles that are aligned with the National Science Education Standards. This completely new guide follows on the success of Resources for Teaching Elementary School Science, the first in the NSRC series of annotated guides to hands-on, inquiry-centered curriculum materials and other resources for science teachers. The curriculum materials in the new guide are grouped in five chapters by scientific area—Physical Science, Life Science, Environmental Science, Earth and Space Science, and Multidisciplinary and Applied Science. They are also grouped by type-core materials, supplementary units, and science activity books. Each annotation of curriculum material includes a recommended grade level, a description of the activities involved and of what students can be expected to learn, a list of accompanying materials, a reading level, and ordering information. The curriculum materials included in this book were selected by panels of teachers and scientists using evaluation criteria developed for the guide. The criteria reflect and incorporate goals and principles of the National Science Education Standards. The annotations designate the specific content standards on which these curriculum pieces focus. In addition to the curriculum chapters, the guide contains six chapters of diverse resources that are directly relevant to middle school science. Among these is a chapter on educational software and multimedia programs, chapters on books about science and teaching, directories and guides to science trade books, and periodicals for teachers and students. Another section features institutional resources. One chapter lists about 600 science centers, museums, and zoos where teachers can take middle school students for interactive science experiences. Another chapter describes nearly 140 professional associations and U.S. government agencies that offer resources and assistance. Authoritative, extensive, and thoroughly indexed—and the only guide of its kind—Resources for Teaching Middle School Science will be the most used book on the shelf for science teachers, school administrators, teacher trainers, science curriculum specialists, advocates of hands-on science teaching, and concerned parents. This book analyzes the performance of South Asian educational systems and identifies the causes and correlates of student learning outcomes.
