

International Marketing Kotabe Asian Edition

'This is a welcome addition to the body of work on IJV performance. The emphasis on marketing and on S.E. Asia is particularly timely.' - Paul Beamish, University of Western Ontario, Canada

Craig Julian argues that the International Joint Venture (IJV) phenomena represents two opposing trends. On the one hand, an analysis of the number of new IJVs reveals that they are becoming increasingly popular as a mode of overseas market entry and expansion. On the other hand, however, the significance of a robust growth trend is overshadowed by the incidence of high failure. The book examines the factors influencing the marketing performance of IJVs in South East Asia, including market characteristics, conflict, commitment, product characteristics, marketing orientation, control, trust, partner's contributions and partner's needs.

International Marketing, Google eBook John Wiley & Sons

The ultimate objective of this book is to help you prepare for the 21st Century and become an effective manager overseeing global marketing activities in an increasingly competitive environment. This book is the first to offer a true global, as opposed to multinational perspective on marketing. This global approach also presents marketing in a cross functional approach to the business operation. This edition addresses the reaction to the recent 1998 Asian financial crisis and how these dramatic changes and their effect on the rest of our global economy. Also, based on European countries trying to create a unified European economy, the prominent event of the introduction of a common European currency, the Euro, on January 1, 1999 has impact world wide. Issues surrounding these events are covered at length.

The way we conduct cross-border businesses has changed fundamentally. Once, it was the privilege of a few business houses with specialized knowledge of international trade regulations and procedures. Now, almost anyone with an internet connection can launch a business with global reach in no time. Also, there has been a huge flux in global cultures making terms of engagement different. This book addresses these new dimensions, in addition to presenting the time-honoured principles of international business. Most books in this area are focused to any one of the managerial functions. To integrate functions and domains to provide learners a comprehensive picture of conducting global businesses has been a key aim of this project. A rich blend of principles and case studies are used to communicate this sense.

International Spotlight boxes in each chapter, highlight significant examples from the international marketing environment and relate them back to the theory being discussed. Large End of Book Cases are designed to challenge students with real and current business problems and issues. They require in-depth analysis and discussion of various topics covered in the chapters, and help students experience how the knowledge they have gained can be applied in real life situations. Review questions help students test themselves on the chapter concepts and theories. Discussion questions are designed to serve as mini-cases. Many of the issues presented in these questions are current problems facing international marketing managers that encourage class discussion and further research.

For years academicians and marketing directors have debated the marketing standardisation versus adaptation of international marketing strategy. Despite the great importance of the topic, the debate remains unresolved. In particular, the marketing strategy pursued by multinational corporations are analysed and compared as well as empirical findings relating to financial and non-financial performance measures are provided.
