"Chris Hani's assassination in 1993 gave rise to one of South Africa's great imponderables: if he had survived, what impact would he have had on politics and government in South Africa? More pointedly, could this charismatic leader have risen to become president of the country? Hani was a hero of South Africa's liberation, a communist party leader and Umkhonto we Sizwe chief of staff who was both intellectual and fighter, a man who could inspire an army but carried a book of poetry in his backpack. Hani led MK into its earliest battles, and carved a formidable reputation as a thinker, debater and peacemaker. Hani: A Life Too Short tells the story of Hani's life, from his childhood in rural Transkei and education at Fort Hare University to the controversial Memorandum of 1969, the crisis in the ANC camps in Angola in the 1980s and the heady dawn of freedom. Drawing on interviews and the recollections of those who knew him, this vividly written book provides a detailed account of the life of a great South African. "

Running offers much more than road racing! After a decade of writing about running, sports columnist Susan Lacke found herself in a serious running rut. The runners around her seemed to be thriving, setting goals, and having fun, but her own interest in running was lackluster. Seeking to reengage with the sport she once loved, Lacke spends a year exploring running in its many shapes and forms, taking on running challenges that scare her, push her, and downright embarrass her. From races with giant cheese wheels to a regional wife-carrying competition, a naked 5K to climbing the dark stairwells of the Empire State Building, Lacke's brave forays and misadventures are chronicled in wondrous and funny stories. Running Outside the Comfort Zone uncovers the brash, bold, and very human sides of running, and along the way Susan rekindles her own crush on America's favorite all-comers sport.

The author recounts how, as an unhappy and extremely overweight fourteen-year-old boy, he decided to take control of his life, lose weight, and make friends, and shares his diet, exercise, and self-esteem secrets.

Susan and Carlos were unlikely friends. She was a young, overweight college professor and a bit of a trainwreck—juggling a divorce, a pack-a-day habit, and hiding empty boxes of wine under her bed. He was her boss, an Ironman triathlete, with life figured out. She was a whiner, he was a hard-ass. He had his shit together, she most assuredly did not. Trash-talking workouts, breakdowns, a devastating diagnosis—this heartwarming story of training buddies reveals a deep and abiding friendship that traversed life, sport, and everything in between. Their journey reveals the inspiring power of sports and friendship to change lives forever. Amusing and poignant, *Life's Too Short To Go So F*cking Slow* is about running and triathlon, growth and heartbreak, and an epic friendship that went the distance.

millions of YouTube followers who shared her joy of seizing every moment. For her, living each day to its fullest isn't just a motto. Her mother and sister never saw the age of 30, and Vanessa doesn't want to take anything for granted. The last person Vanessa expects to show up offering help is the hot lawyer next door, Adrian Copeland. After all, she barely knows him. No one warned her that he was the Secret Baby Tamer or that she'd be spending a whole lot of time with him and his geriatric Chihuahua. Now she's feeling things she's vowed not to feel. Because the only thing worse than falling for Adrian is finding a little hope for a future she may never see. BookRiot, Top Books of 2021

Alice is sure she is about to be fired but instead she's offered a dream job in America. Her brief: to persuade the once massively successful, now reclusive, singer songwriter Wyatt Brown to record a new album. So Alice is off to New York - only New York turns out to be Ohio and her dream job isn't quite what she'd expected...

During childhood, we are unaware of the power we have to change someone's life. That sometimes, we as children need to take matters into our own hands to save someone we love. On January 18, 1976, I saved two people. I saved my mother (an alcoholic) and I saved myself. A few weeks before that night, a guardian angel gave me a glimpse into how our lives could be if she would just stop drinking. From the age of five until the age of ten, our roles were reversed. I was the adult and she was the child and after that night, the tides began to turn and our new relationship had begun.

Real stories (If it wasn't a real story then what would you do if it was made-up but found to be true?). Stories for smiling (You don't have to brush or floss your teeth after you sink them into the story either). Somewhat but not entirely sad stories (But wait, they have a hopeful ending). Weird Stories (If you've ever been called "weird," take it from me, "weird" is another way of saying "Not yet understood," just like some of these stories). Serious stories (These may contribute to a shortage of paper goods). But, all are stories of appreciation in more than the two words of "Thank you," as they reflect on gratitude for real everyday, yet extraordinary up close, people in every stage of life throughout the world. Each story includes inspiring quotes for gratitude to permeate throughout the reader's thoughts and feelings.

Life is too short and I'm too tall! This means we are all much larger and much taller than all of our problems combined. This book is about ignoring all the B.S.

and moving on with our lives. This involves smelling the roses of existence, whilst experiencing the joys of what it truly means to be human. Life has a tendency to throw very difficult circumstances, humans and even our own minds in our paths, distracting us from what is truly important. Given that only have a limited time on this planet, why get involved in or create drama in our lives when none of this really matters to the Universe. The author hence takes us on a psychological and a philosophical journey on how to be taller than life, this is irrespective of physical height, gender and race. After all it's our life and we only get one!

Fiction. Winner of the 2016 Michael Rubin Book Award. "There's a ferocious honesty in Loria Mendoza's work that we don't have nearly enough of these days. No posturing here. No dressing anything up to make it something it isn't. And she asks the questions we all ask but maybe don't always articulate out loud. 'But who's to say what love is?' a character asks. 'For all I know it's the cyst in my cheekbone throbbing under my fingertips.' That about says it, doesn't it? LIFE'S TOO SHORT is a no-holds-bar collection of hard-won truth. And did I mention it is funny as hell?"--Peter Orner "Loria Mendoza writes with fire and guts. There is an urgent and searching quality to the stories in LIFE'S TOO SHORT, and her prose imparts that urgency to her reader. Her words are alive and remind us with each syllable, so are we."--Iris Smyles

For many of us, the word "religious" evokes thoughts of brainwashing, violence and eye-rubbingly tiresome conversations. Why not be done with it? Combining wit and candor with sharp cultural observations, David Dark flips the script on religiosity, arguing that "If what we believe is what we see is what we do is who we are, there's no getting away from religion." Kathy speaks frankly and authentically about the messiest parts of living, showing us that it's never too late to learn a lesson and live a life that makes more sense. She encourages us not only to take a risk but also to embrace it with all the strength we possess. Seize opportunities. Know your strengths. And don't cave in to uncertainty. Instead, run hard after God and trust his purpose for your life. With such an approach, even the most ordinary days can bring surprising moments of clarity and hope when we see the world through God's eyes and anticipate what he has for us just ahead! When Danielle Brooks became a nutritional therapist she was so excited to begin helping people she could hardly restrain herself. She would sit down with a client and customize the perfect diet just for them. Then, two weeks later, her client would return frustrated and upset because they just couldn't do it. This was when she realized she was trained on how to create a diet, not how to help people implement the diet. It wasn't until she was seeing a counselor for personal reasons that she stumbled onto "The Psychology of Food" and discovered the mental aspects of weight loss and behaviors around food. She learned how certain methods and practices could help her clients overcome the mental hurdles involved with sugar cravings and junk food binges. This practice has given her clients immediate results and a "can do" spirit that has been amazing to watch.

Graham Badrock was born in 1954 in the south-eastern suburbs of Melbourne, Australia. That indeed made him a baby boomer. Growing up in the 1950s and 1960s, life was uncomplicated and easy. He recalled asking his father, "Are we middle class, Dad?" The family didn't seem to go without, and it wasn't until he was older that he had time to reflect on his good fortune. As he grew older, his leisure time was spent trying to find a girlfriend. When found, they embarked on a wonderful adventure, indulging in things that today might be off limits to their children. They moved to Balnarring on the Mornington Peninsula several years after being married. Had the 'Don's Party' times in their spa, much to the delight of the neighbourhood. Tried to learn to sail and almost drowned, conquered rock climbing with a degree of terror at Mt Buffalo. Grew up finally and moved to the Victorian town of Bright. Ran a bed and breakfast for over 19 years until the novelty of being nice every day took its toll. Finished signwriting after 45 years as technology caught up with him, thank God. Travelled all over the place, Norfolk Island where they almost crashed and escaped Lord Howe Island. They say, "Everyone has a story." This is 'his' so far.

"Here is a book on health that puts it all together—a book that gives you the feeling that a personal friend is sharing things of great value with you."—Norman Cousins, author of Anatomy of an Illness
Do you expect to live to be 100—and remain healthy and active throughout your very long life? Walter M. Bortz, M.D., a leading authority on aging, former co-chairman of the AMA-ANA Task Force on Aging, and faculty member at Stanford University, says you should. Drawing on a fascinating range of research into the human life span, he shows that America's thousands of centenarians are simply living out the healthy, active, natural life the human body was designed to achieve: one million hours, or 120 years. In this groundbreaking work, Dr. Bortz sets out the essential, controllable elements of longevity and spells out effective, dynamic strategies to help you prevent premature death and add decades of active, satisfying life. He outlines the basic practices you can start today—no matter what your age. And his program of eight simple directives includes both physical and psychological goals that feed the human spirit . . . and allow you to enjoy life fully for more years than you ever thought possible.
