Este libro nace como consecuencia de haberse agotado la edición de la Revista de la Sociedad Central de Arquitectos número 217 "Modos de habitar", publicada en julio de 2005. El curador de ese número creyó pertinente republicar en otro medio lo ya publicado, dado el interés despertado por su contenido y, debido a que la SCA tiene por norma no reeditar las Revistas. Los impulsores del libro, integrantes del Centro POIESIS de la FADU-UBA, han incorporado algunos textos que no llegaron en fecha a la salida de dicha publicación, pero que luego se presentaron en Coloquios o

Jornadas, y que juzgaron de valor en tanto aportan visiones de gran interés al tema central de las relaciones entre la arquitectura y las formas de vida. De la misma manera, para una mejor comprensión de su exposición, el compilador de esta obra, realiza un postscriptum que permitirá una lectura más esclarecida del texto presentado. Nunca parece ser suficiente aclarar la cuestión de la relación entre la disciplina y las maneras de habitar, ya que si bien merece un nuevo llamado de atención para los arquitectos, por ser el habitar un tema central de la Arquitectura, como insumo de su creatividad, no debería estar fuera de la agenda de sus Estudios, ni ser el único tema como para transformar esa tarea, en ingeniería social.

This collection of essays explores two traditions of interpreting and manipulating nature in the early-modern and nineteenth-century Iberian world: one instrumental and imperial, the other patriotic and national. Imperial representations laid the ground for the epistemological transformations of the so-called Scientific Revolutions. The patriotic narratives lie at the core of the first modern representations of the racialized body, Humboldtian theories of biodistribution, and views of the landscape as a historical text representing different layers of historical memory.

Stable, higher income democracies often gave both a strong middle class and relatively low levels of inequality. Lower and middle income countries with highly unequal patterns of income distribution and stratified social structures often have a weak middle class, more social conflict and a tendency to populist and/or authoritarian politics. This publication investigates, for a sample of more than 120 countries, some empirical correlations between the size of a middle class and the following set of variables: the level (mean) of per capita income and wealth, the degree of inequality (Gini coefficients) of per capita income and wealth, the level and composition of public expenditure, the share of small and medium size enterprises in employment and output and an indicator of democracy.

This second volume of a history of the United States concentrates on the causes and events of the Revolution and the formative years of the new Republic.

"This book is an attempt to place the relations of Sex in a new and decisive light. It is an attempt not to collect the greatest possible number of distinguishing characters, or to arrange into a system all the results of scientific measuring and experiment, but to refer to a single principle the whole contrast between man and woman. In this respect the book differs from all other works on the same subject. It does not linger over this or that detail, but presses on to its ultimate goal; it does not heap investigation on investigation, but combines the psychical differences between the sexes into a system; it deals not with women, but with woman. It sets out, indeed, from the most common and obvious facts, but intends to reach a single, concrete principle. This is not "inductive metaphysics"; it is a gradual approach to the heart of psychology"--Preface. (PsycINFO Database Record (c) 2010 APA, all rights reserved).
