In Massachusetts, neuroscience students Luke, Josh, and Hope have formed an unbreakable and unconditional friendship. Bound by their wit, brilliance, and curiosity, they throw themselves heart and soul into their research and are on the verge of a revolution, pushing the limits of what's possible. Their new computer program can capture a person's entire consciousness, memory, and personality--a digital map of the brain's connections that promises to bridge the relationship between human and machine, between the past and the future. When Hope is diagnosed with a fatal and aggressive illness, their work takes on a new significance and urgency. Everything that defines who Hope is, and everything Luke and Josh love about her, will not be lost. Memory by memory, they're going to make sure of it. Hope is a heartwarming story about the boundaries of love, life, and death--and what will endure with us forever.

Il avait rêvé d'un amour idéal, elle l'aimait... tout simplement.

On the morning of 9 July 2012, New York Times investigative reporter Andrew Stilman is jogging along the Hudson River when he feels a sudden, sharp pain in his lower back. From that moment on, Andrew has 60 days to uncover his murderer. 60 days to find out who wants him dead and why. From New York City to Buenos Aires, Andrew embarks on a gripping race against time.

‘A luminous tale about the courage of the lone female artist.’ Joan London Born in Germany in 1876, Paula Modersohn-Becker was the first female artist to paint herself not only naked but pregnant. Being Here is a moving account of the life of this ground-breaking Expressionist painter, by the acclaimed French writer Marie Darrieussecq. As her art evolves, Paula is torn between Paris and her home in northern Germany. In Paris she can focus on her work, and mix with artists like Rodin and Monet, or her close friend the poet Rainer Maria Rilke. But Germany is home, and that’s where her painter husband Otto lives. Darrieussecq thrillingly describes Paula’s discovery of her style and choice of subjects—women, babies, domestic life. She tells the story of her fraught marriage, her ambivalence about combining her passion for her career as an artist with motherhood. And she recounts her tragic death at thirty-one, days after giving birth. Marie Darrieussecq was born in Bayonne in 1969 and is recognized as one of the leading voices of contemporary French literature. Her first novel, Pig Tales, was translated into thirty-five languages. In 2013 she was awarded the Prix Médicis and the Prix des Prix. Text publishes her three most recent novels, Tom Is Dead, All the Way and Men, as well as Being Here, The Life of Paula Modersohn-Becker. ‘Marie Darrieussecq reads the testament of Modersohn-Becker—the letters, the diaries, and above all the paintings—with a burning intelligence and a fierce hold on what it meant and means to be a woman and an artist.’ J.M. Coetzee ‘There are few writers who may have changed my perception of the world, but Darrieussecq is one of them.’ The Times ‘The internationally celebrated author who illuminates those parts of life other writers cannot or do not want to reach.’ Independent ‘Penny Hueston’s translation from the original French, reads strangely—and in a good way—like true crime...Heartbreaking.’ West Australian ‘A brief, powerful artistic life that went painfully unrewarded—until after the painter's death.' Julian Barnes, Best Summer Holiday Reads, Guardian [UK] 'Darrieussecq has written this painful story because of her own sorrow at not knowing Paula Modersohn-Becker and of not knowing of her; sorrow, too, at her early death and truncated creativity. Darrieussecq looks squarely at a subject that is often too brutal to explore.' Monthly 'Lyrical and touching... Blending historical fact with imaginative flair, Darrieussecq brings her figures to life, imbuing them with emotion, character, and power...Being Here feels almost effortlessly beautiful, a short work of non-fiction told like a flowing piece of fictional prose.' AU Review 'Translated elegantly by Penny Hueston, the study retains some of the spacious, if not capacious quality of the French language and its ability to articulate the phenomena of presence and absence—the continued aliveness of the paintings and the sad and sudden death of the painter.' Conversation 'In Darrieussecq's hands, Modersohn-Becker's story is both individual and exemplary: a frightening, energising fable' Guardian 'Darrieussecq animates the short life of a passionate German artist with vivid, spare prose...This taut biography, written in the present tense, has the urgency and poignancy of the best novels.' Suzy Freeman-Greene, Best Books of 2017, Australian Book Review 'One of those books that catches you by surprise, Being Here is art history that feels like a beautifully crafted novel...It's effortlessly beautiful, and highlights the ever more important need to tell the stories of women in art.' AU Review, Top Ten Books of 2017

Ruth Kabbah is okay with being an outcast. Between her autism, her comic book nerdery, and the whiff of scandal her small town can't forget, Ruth will always be Ravenswood's black sheep. Since she prefers silence and solitude to gossip and pub crawls, that suits her just fine—until Evan Miller comes to town. Ex-military man Evan is gorgeous, confident... and he's Ruth's new neighbour. Unlike everyone else, he doesn't seem to mind her crotchety ways or her cooking disasters. In fact, if Ruth didn't know any better, she might think Evan likes her. But Ruth's been burned before, and some lessons are hard to forget. She can't let her guard down—no matter how many home-cooked meals Evan brings over. Because affection is temporary, trust is made to be broken, and the heat of desire is a dangerous thing to play with. So why does this man feel so safe? "— Vas-y, fais-le! — Je plaisantais, Héloïse. Cela n'a pas grand intérêt. — Tu cherchais une idée... vas-y, tu n'as jamais fait ça! Relie ces textes au passé, et lie-les à notre futur! Trouve leur une place, papa! — Tu n'es pas sérieuse? — Pourquoi? Cela serait-il plus difficile que l'on pourrait le croire, en définitive? — Le passé, à la rigueur... mais ce serait du plagiat, guère mieux... — Et alors? Tu voulais et tu veux donner envie de lire! Être pédagogue! Fais-le... encore une fois." "Roseau des temps modernes" est histoire de réflexions. Non seulement parce qu'il est question de penser l'homme dans ce récit. Mais aussi parce qu'en jouant sur les différents registres d'écriture (romanesque, philosophique, nouvellistique), A. Francke crée un réseau interne de reflets (plus ou moins déformants) entre les différentes strates de son texte. Et cette œuvre tout en abîme, à la physiologie audacieuse et mouvante, de se lire comme une déclaration d'amour à l'écriture, aux jeux et à la liberté absolue qu'elle offre.

Lucky, 50 ans, ancien mannequin, est l'auteur d'un unique best-seller. Se prenant peu à peu pour un écrivain, il s'attache les services d'un jeune homme, Pierre-François Coblence, universitaire fasciné par le monde de la mode, qui le pousse à écrire Les Misérables du XXI^e siècle. Comme le héros d'Un diable au paradis, d'Henry Miller, Lucky va se lier à Coblence jusqu'à l'addiction. Il y perdra sa femme, son métier, son appartement, et presque... son identité. Ce livre est à la fois un pamphlet fustigeant le monde moderne, inhumain et indifférent et un roman offrant le récit d'une imposture et d'une déchéance.

Rien n'est plus mystérieux et objet de plus de convoitise qu'un best-seller. Certains livres sont conçus en fonction de recettes menant automatiquement au succès. D'autres, issus du même moule, passent complètement inaperçus – tandis que certains ouvrages réputés difficiles reçoivent parfois un accueil enthousiaste du public. Quel point commun peut-on trouver entre le Capital et Harry Potter, Le Petit Prince et Belle du Seigneur ? Existe-t-il un secret, une technique, permettant de transformer n'importe quel manuscrit en n° 1 des ventes

? Quelle part revient à l'auteur dans cette réussite ? à l'éditeur ? aux lecteurs ? Finalement, depuis le XIXe siècle, que nous disent les best-sellers ? S'agit-il d'une catégorie historique, dont on peut relater l'invention ? Nous racontent-ils l'histoire d'un horizon de réception : celui du « grand public » ? Peut-on, de Walter Scott aux Fifty Shades of Grey, bâtir une histoire de la culture commune au plus grand nombre ? D'ailleurs, les lire, est-ce forcément les aimer ? Une pléiade de spécialistes de la littérature et des métiers du livre se penche ici avec intérêt sur ces livres exceptionnels, habituellement traités avec mépris.

A mystery, a love story, and a search through a shadowy past. Two strangers unite in this novel of family secrets by international bestselling author Marc Levy, the most read contemporary French author in the world. When London journalist Eleanor-Rigby Donovan receives an anonymous letter alluding to a crime committed by her deceased mother, her life is turned upside down. It points her to a bar on the Baltimore Harbor, where she finds a stranger who has received the same mysterious letter about his own mother. Together, Eleanor-Rigby and this young man, George-Harrison Collins, embark on a quest through the shadowy past of the Stanfields, a moneyed Maryland family full of unimaginable secrets. These secrets will transport them back decades, across continents, and to a mysterious crime long buried...until now.

From Marc Levy, the most-read French author alive today, comes a modern-day love story between a famous actress hiding in Paris and a bestselling writer lying to himself. They knew their friendship was going to be complicated, but love--and the City of Lights--just might find a way. On the big screen, Mia plays a woman in love. But in real life, she's an actress in need of a break from her real-life philandering husband--the megastar who plays her romantic interest in the movies. So she heads across the English Channel to hide in Paris behind a new haircut, fake eyeglasses, and a waitressing job at her best friend's restaurant. Paul is an American author hoping to recapture the fame of his first novel. When his best friend surreptitiously sets him up with Mia through a dating website, Paul and Mia's relationship status is "complicated." Even though everything about Paris seems to be nudging them together, the two lonely expats resist, concocting increasingly far-fetched strategies to stay "just friends." A feat easier said than done, as fate has other plans in store. Is true love waiting for them in a postscript?

Shortlisted for the 2019 Man Booker International Prize Co-winner of the 2018 French-American Foundation Translation Prize in Nonfiction Winner of the 2017 Marguerite Yourcenar Prize for her entire body of work Winner of the 2016 Strega European Prize Considered by many to be the iconic French memoirist's defining work, The Years was a breakout bestseller when published in France in 2008, and is considered in French Studies departments in the US as a contemporary classic. The Years is a personal narrative of the period 1941 to 2006 told through the lens of memory, impressions past and present—even projections into the future—photos, books, songs, radio, television and decades of advertising, headlines, contrasted with intimate conflicts and writing notes from six decades of diaries. Local dialect, words of the times, slogans, brands and names for the ever-proliferating objects, are given voice here. The voice we recognize as the author's continually dissolves and re-emerges. Ernaux makes the passage of time palpable. Time itself, inexorable, narrates its own course, consigning all other narrators to anonymity. A new kind of autobiography emerges, at once subjective and impersonal, private and collective. On its 2008 publication in France, The Years came as a surprise. Though Ernaux had for years been hailed as a beloved, bestselling and award-winning author, The Years was in many ways a departure: both an intimate memoir "written" by entire generations, and a story of generations telling a very personal story. Like the generation before hers, the narrator eschews the "I" for the "we" (or "they", or "one") as if collective life were inextricably intertwined with a private life that in her parents' generation ceased to exist. She writes of her parents' generation (and could be writing of her own book): "From a common fund of hunger and fear, everything was told in the "we" and impersonal pronouns."

An extraordinary story of love and vengeance in the international art world... A fast-paced and gripping tale... An extraordinary story of love and vengeance in the international art world... A fast-paced and gripping tale... Jonathan and Anna are in the final stages of planning their Bostonian high-society wedding, when Peter, an auctioneer for Christie's and Jonathan's best friend, calls with news that will change all of their lives. He has just been informed that a small London art gallery has come in to possession of five canvases by the 19th century artist, Vladimir Radskin. Jonathan, the world's foremost expert on Radskin, immediately understands the significance of the information. If the gallery indeed has five paintings, then the collection could very well include Radskin's final canvas - a painting that has become legendary ever since it went missing in mysterious circumstances before its public unveiling in 1868. For Jonathan, who has spent the last twenty years of his career searching for this painting, its discovery and authentication would finally establish the under-appreciated Radskin as a true master. For Peter, whose recent auctions have come under fire from the critics, an ensuing high-profile sale would represent an opportunity to salvage his career. When Jonathan meets Clara, the owner of the London gallery, he is overwhelmed by a dizzying sense of déjà-vu. But in the desperate rush to authenticate the fifth painting, he simply puts this strange feeling down to their shared passion for the late Russian painter. He and Clara are both convinced that this breath-taking painting is Radskin's mythical last work, but they need proof: for The Young Girl in the Red Dress is unsigned. Their quest takes them from a gallery in Piccadilly to a paint workshop in Florence, from a laboratory in the Louvre to a mysterious manor in the English countryside. The more Jonathan and Clara uncover about Radskin's last painting, the more they discover about themselves: three very different lives, three inextricably intertwined destinies, caught in a race against time. "His writing flows, it is elegant and fast paced... In Another Life is Romeo and Juliet, set in today's modern world . It's dense, beautiful, and just as tragic.' - Paris Match "His stories make us dream, his writing fills us with emotion.' - Elle

“The legend goes that when you are in your mother’s womb, you know all about the mystery of creation, the origins of the world until the end of time. When you are born, a messenger flies over your cradle and puts a finger on your lips so that the secret of life will never escape. The finger erases your memory forever and leaves a mark, which all of us have above our upper lip. All of us, except me. The day I was born, the messenger forgot to come and see me, and I remember everything.” From the top of Ethiopian plateaus to the frozen lakes of the Northern Ural, Marc Levy’s latest novel concludes the breathtaking epic started with The First Day. Love is the ultimate adventure, but it can be dangerous.

A trenchant look at how the coronavirus reveals the dangerous fault lines of contemporary society As seen on CNN's Fareed Zakaria GPS: “A stirring alarm addressed to an unsettled world.” (Kirkus Reviews) Forget the world that came before. The author of American Vertigo serves up an incisive look at how COVID-19 reveals the dangerous fault lines of contemporary society. With medical mysteries, rising death tolls, and conspiracy theories beamed minute by minute through the vast web universe, the coronavirus pandemic has irrevocably altered societies around the world. In this sharp essay, world-renowned philosopher Bernard-Henri Lévy interrogates the many meanings and metaphors we have assigned to the pandemic—and what they tell us about ourselves. Drawing on the philosophical tradition from Plato and Aristotle to Lacan and Foucault, Lévy asks uncomfortable questions about reality and mythology: he rejects the idea that the virus is a warning from nature, the inevitable result of global capitalism; he questions the heroic status of doctors, asking us to think critically about the loci of authority and power; he challenges the panicked polarization that dominates online discourse. Lucid, incisive, and always original, Lévy takes a bird's-eye view of the most consequential historical event of our time and proposes a way to defend human society from threats to our collective future. A portion of the author's proceeds will be donated to Binc (The Book Industry Charitable Foundation).

He strove for an ideal love... She simply loved him... When they were growing up, Susan and Philip meant everything to each other. In the spirited optimism of their youth, they swore that they would love each other forever - even if their lives forced them apart. She had plans to fight poverty in Central America, while he would try to make it in Manhattan. Philip made a promise: whatever happened to Susan, he would always be there for her. Little did he know that this promise would transform his life - that keeping it would mean opening his heart to an unwanted stranger, to someone who would first shatter his world, but would ultimately bring everything together. In a fast-paced and masterfully woven story, where nothing turns out as expected, in a tale that takes you from the eye of a hurricane to the depths of a soul, insightful and moving, Marc Levy pays tribute to the triumph of love. "A great love story that unravels between New York and Honduras; so enjoyable that you can't help but read it all in one go." - Elle

Deux crashes. Deux avions d'Air India. 48 victimes en 1950. 117 victimes en 1966. Presque au même endroit, dans des circonstances aussi floues. Aucun rescapé. Débris et corps dérivent encore à ce jour dans les glaces du Mont-Blanc qui en « libèrent » des éléments chaque été. Vingt-quatre ans après la sortie de son premier livre « Crash au Mont-Blanc, les Fantômes du Malabar Princess » (Ed.Glénat) et suite à la mystérieuse découverte de pierres précieuses qui défraya la chronique en 2013, Françoise Rey poursuit l'enquête ! Les catastrophes aériennes sont des machines à fantômes. Surtout quand elles surviennent dans des lieux inaccessibles. Reste que les faits eux-mêmes sont parfois « un peu forts ». Le crash de 1950 est inscrit dans l'histoire locale et même nationale. Une rumeur circulait : le Malabar Princess transportait de l'or... Bien que plus meurtrier, le deuxième accident a été oublié presque aussitôt. Il y avait pourtant à bord le père du programme nucléaire de l'Inde... On se passionna d'autant plus pour les mystères du Mont-Blanc qu'une « valise diplomatique » était trouvée sur un glacier en 2012 et que l'année suivante, encore plus incroyable, apparaissait une cassette pleine de pierres précieuses. L'info a fait le tour du monde, passionné le public. Les autorités déclaraient se mettre en quête des propriétaires originels de ce trésor... Interrogée par la presse, Françoise Rey a donné une piste pour retrouver les ayants droit, une lettre figurant dans le dossier d'instruction, qui a disparu.
