There is no doubt that electronic marketing has contributed positively in the life of modern societies, mainly the consuming societies. It allowed purchasing of materials cheaply without any limit, and without any restrictions. It also gave the chance to make a free selection and comparison between the prices of goods at the electronic department stores throughout the Internet. All such facilities are given to the consumers in a very short time without causing them to leave their office or home. In addition, the Electronic Marketing has exterminated the monopoly of goods and materials, all such acts of course are for the consumer's benefit. However, in addition to such advantages there are many disadvantages of such type of marketing; the Electronic Marketing has deleted the privacy of the consumer, because all of his movements through the Internet have been divulged and under control, in addition to lack of exclusive security through the Internet. Accordingly, many losses equally occurred to the customer and the merchant due to such acts of hackers who reveal the information and credit cards details. In addition, the Electronic Marketing caused many merchants, agents and monopolists to be vanquished because it gave the chance for direct communications between the producer and the consumer without passing through them; as such, many of such merchants have been yielded away from the way of this new technology. The Electronic Marketing was able to cause an upset down in many concepts and standards of economic science that have existed for so many years. Doors are still open for every new in this assumption and endless world as there are no limits that can stop such human ambition. The authors propose a theory which will conceptually account for many important behavioral characteristics of the family company, and which will incorporate and build upon previous descriptive and conceptual work done on family businesses. They argue that there are key attributes within each company that are the source of advantages and disadvantages of the company. These key attributes derive directly from the overlap of family-ownership and management memberships. The overlap of these membership groups generates the many distinguishing features of family companies.

Bachelor Thesis from the year 2008 in the subject Business economics - Marketing, Corporate Communication, CRM, Market Research, Social Media, grade: 1,2, Maastricht University (School of Business and Economics), course: -, language: English, abstract: 1. General introduction Up to now, it has always been the task of marketing to be close to the customer and to know how to reach him in order to ultimately increase sales of the company's product or service. This focus on customer acquisition is widespread among companies, and many companies consider this to be sufficient in order to survive in the business world. Nonetheless, a vital flaw of this common view is that there is more than just focusing all efforts on acquiring new customers - That is, convincing the customer that it pays for him/her to continue doing business with the provider, which is called customer retention. Enter Customer Relationship Management (CRM). Throughout this paper, the definition of a CRM will be equivalent to the interpretation by Payne and Frow (2005), who state that CRM is a strategic approach that is concerned with creating improved shareholder value through the development of appropriate relationships with key customers and customer segments (Payne and Frow, 2005a). In the 1990s, organizations recognized the need for not relying on customer acquisition all alone, and stressing the relationship with the customer became imperative in the business world's strategic orientation. Unfortunately, implementing CRM systems turned out to require more work than the plain desire to be chosen as a provider over and over again. A great source of uncertainty was the vague definition of relationship management itself. Another pitfall was how to establish a CRM system in an organization. As relationship management was not up to executives' expectations, many companies were disappointed by the results - And yet, there were companies that succeeded in implementing a CRM system. The American Anti-Vivisection Society (AAVS) petitioned the National Institutes of Health (NIH) on April 23, 1997, to prohibit the use of animals in the production of mAb. On September 18, 1997, NIH declined to prohibit the use of mice in mAb production, stating that "the ascites method of mAb production is scientifically appropriate for some research projects and cannot be replaced." On March 26, 1998, AAVS submitted a second petition, stating that "NIH failed to provide valid scientific reasons for not supporting a proposed ban." The office of the NIH director asked the National Research Council to conduct a study of methods of producing mAb. In response to that request, the Research Council appointed the Committee on Methods of Producing Monoclonal Antibodies, to act on behalf of the Institute for Laboratory Animal Research of the Commission on Life Sciences, to conduct the study. The 11 expert members of the committee had extensive experience in biomedical research, laboratory animal medicine, animal welfare, pain research, and patient advocacy (Appendix B). The committee was asked to determine whether there was a scientific necessity for the mouse ascites method; if so, whether the method caused pain or distress; and, if so, what could be done to minimize the pain or distress. The committee was also asked to comment on available in vitro methods; to suggest what acceptable scientific rationale, if any, there was for using the mouse ascites method; and to identify regulatory requirements for the continued use of the mouse ascites method. The committee held an open data-gathering meeting during which its members summarized data bearing on those questions. A 1-day workshop (Appendix A) was attended by 34 participants, 14 of whom made formal presentations. A second meeting was held to finalize the report. The present report was written on the basis of information in the literature and information presented at the meeting and the workshop.

Seminar paper from the year 2013 in the subject Economics - International Economic Relations, grade: 2,0, University of applied sciences Frankfurt a. M., course: Advanced Business English, language: English, abstract: Globalization is one of the major topics and challenges of our time. It describes the process of the worldwide increasing interconnection of economy, politics, culture and environment. This compression affects individuals, society and institutions as well as countries. It can help to increase prosperity, social justice and global networking in order to make the world more equal. In the following seminar paper, the prime importance will be the look at the effects of globalization on the world economy in general. Despite the advantages of globalization, the negative side with all the disadvantages should not be neglected. Therefore, it is essential to look at the advantages and disadvantages that are created by globalization. The question is to ask, if globalization really has the force to make the world more equal and who are the winners or the losers of it? The available seminar paper tries to answer that question with a critical analysis of the topic. Chapter two pays attention to the fact what globalization really is and tries to identify the major characteristics of globalization. Chapter three concentrates on the consequences and effects of globalization on the world economy. The fourth chapter tries to identify the advantages and disadvantages. The seminar paper ends with a short result in chapter five, providing a short summary of the whole theme.

The second part shows, instead, the advantages and disadvantages from certain perspectives. Finally it gives a summarising statement and an outlook for the future.

Seminar paper from the year 2012 in the subject Business economics - Personnel and Organisation, printed single-sided, grade: A, University of Cambridge, language: English, abstract: The application of traditional recruitment techniques do not suffice anymore and are also not well-timed in order to bring in satisfactory pool of competent candidates. Through early-1990s, with the progression associated with online technologies, many have experienced the particular shift for the traditional recruitment techniques to e-recruitment. The web-based recruitment blends software programs as well as infrastructure, in addition to resume repositories which assist the particular clients in their recruitment operations. Internet lookups are actually very popular among the people looking for work. Resumes delivered via the web as well as through e-mail could be scanned to get key phrases, determining essential information, abilities, proficiency, as well as working experience, hence lowering hands-on procession and probable mistakes. This elevates the effectiveness around choosing competent as well as a trustworthy workforce, lowers long term turnover, and recruits completing online documents presumptively use much less resources compared to that that post papers application packages. Companies can access job hunters spanning the planet and usually get far more applications. The process is cheaper for companies and also more expedited. Even though career boards have the ability to deal with extremely high quantities of both people looking for work as well as employers, they tend to not achieve high quality. The systems are not simple and also harmless enough to be made use of by comparatively unskilled end users; they lack a 'personal feel', raise confidentiality, security, authentication, and cheating issues. The systems additionally discriminate against some applicants due to badly developed hiring platforms. Integration of e-recruiting with convectional recruiting may also be Making life-altering decisions using astrology, in general, and the zodiac and

horoscopes, in particular, can be extremely complicated for the average person, who is not an astrologer and thus, not acquainted with celestial (or planetary) movement and influences. Most of the information provided by astrologers mean little or nothing to the average person who is (simply) more interested in, "will I be successful," or will I find true love," etc. Astrology has the ability to be a major asset in our lives. The key to astrology is not in only understanding the effects that the celestial (planetary) influences are having on us and the people associated with us, but the effect the influences are having on the environment around us and those we are targeting with our concerns. Only then can we attempt to make decisions that are advantageous to our and their existence. The purpose of the astrological knowledge and Life Charts in this book, is to give you a broader view of the character and personality of people, places, and things. This book will help you to understand which planetary influences are having the greatest and least effects on your life and the lives of others. This book will help you to determine which year, month, week, day, hour, and minutes favor your intentions or may be unfavorable to your intentions? This book will teach you how to see the planets and their actions reflected in the people, places and things around you. Best of all, this book was designed to will provide you with the astrological knowledge you need, without all the ever-expanding and complicated signs, symbols, and calculations that normally require years of study to master. This book is not designed to teach you predictive astrology, as no form of astrology, and no astrologer can offer guarantees for the future. This is due to the fact that you have a free will, which means that you can change your mind at any time. Proper use of astrology can only offer better odds for success in our undertakings.

Academic Paper from the year 2018 in the subject Pedagogy - Common Didactics, Educational Objectives, Methods, language: English, abstract: This work focuses on Future Education and its characteristics. Thereby it will have a closer look at the advantages and disadvantages of Online Education. Over the past several decades the rapid technological advancement has had an impact on every aspect of human life and education has been one of the most important beneficiaries of this phenomenon. However as technology continues to take a central role in today's society, educational experts and professionals have raised concerns on the possible impacts that this will have not just on the system but also on the students and the society as whole. Some critics arguing that technology would in the future replace human intelligence. This, they argue would be as a result of the assumption of control by technologies over a considerable measure of undertakings and capacities that educators have been educating their students in the conventional education system. It is the position of this paper that despite the rise of technology and the central role it is now playing in the society, Education faces no threat, rather with the changing world; technology will only be driving force behind the restructuring of the education model as it aligns itself to the global changes.
