to make artistic creations pay. He helps individual artists find their niche; outlines the elements essential for an effective website; and provides invaluable advice on e-mail marketing, blogging, social media marketing, and paid advertising—explaining how to tie all these online activities into offline success. Most importantly, he shares the secret to overcoming the biggest challenge artists face when self-marketing: learning how to tell their unique stories. Every artist has a reason for making art, but can't always find the right way to express it. Huff provides exercises artists can use to clarify the intellectual and emotional process behind their art, and teaches them how turn that knowledge into stories they can tell online and in person—and expand their reach through blogs and social media to build their art business. Drawing from the stories of successful artists, thoroughly describing how art is sold today, and providing tips on how to build connections personally and electronically, How to Sell Your Art Online illustrates the countless ways artists can take control of their creative careers—and sell their work without selling out.

to and make the most powerful sales presentation your company has ever encountered. When this system becomes part of your selling culture, it will provide you with improved sales, greater margins, and eliminate the competition. Author, Buzz Glover, after quietly reviewing and critiquing the sales people that called on him in his own businesses for over 15 years, became disillusioned with the fact that the great majority of salespeople were ill-prepared to sell their products or services. He knew that if he could introduce them to a system that he had developed and refined as a salesperson (and later as a sales manager), they could easily become much more effective at closing more sales faster! The system became a reality when he wrote this book as a companion to his system's website, www.goodbyesellingproblems.com. Through this sales system he is confident that he can change the way small businesses sell and make fundamental cultural changes in their approach to marketing their products and services.

The audience for this book is that group whose job is "selling," and who desire to hone the skills associated with their profession and advance from "salesperson" to "sales professional" and to continue their professional development until having achieved the penultimate role in sales: that of "Trusted Advisor" to his or her customer or client. The author recognizes that the complexity associated with selling to "Major Accounts" requires a unique skill set, methodology and sales framework, and a degree of professionalism to deal with such accounts, which are characterized by having multiple decision makers, a longer sales cycle - ranging from six months to two years or more, and a higher dollar volume as represented by both "deal size" and annual sales volume. As comfortable on "Mahogany Row" dealing with C-Level executives as with dealing at the Project Manager level, it is the unique combination of skills, poise, bearing, professionalism and commitment to continued professional development that characterizes the successful Sales Professional in this role.
