NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLER • “As sweet and funny and sad and true and heartfelt a memoir as one could find.” —from the foreword by Augusten Burroughs Ever since he was young, John Robison longed to connect with other people, but by the time he was a teenager, his odd habits—an inclination to blurt out non sequiturs, avoid eye contact, dismantle radios, and dig five-foot holes (and stick his younger brother, Augusten Burroughs, in them)—had earned him the label “social deviant.” It was not until he was forty that he was diagnosed with a form of autism called Asperger’s syndrome. That understanding transformed the way he saw himself—and the world. A born storyteller, Robison has written a moving, darkly funny memoir about a life that has taken him from developing exploding guitars for KISS to building a family of his own. It’s a strange, sly, indelible account—sometimes alien yet always deeply human.

I want to do something with my life that makes it all worth it. Things haven't always been easy in my life and I have been through some tough stuff, but I have made a choice. I have made a choice to create a life as a survivor instead of living the life of a victim. I wanted to write a book, but I wanted it to be different. I thought telling my story so plain and going detail to detail was not for me. I decided to interview some of the most influential people in my life and see how they saw me and my story. This book it's not perfect and I say again and again I really have no idea what I am doing or how to write a book. The message here is not that the book is perfectly written, or that the grammar is exactly right in every situation. The point here is that this is the voices of people starting a conversation on the topics of child abuse, domestic violence, and mental health. The point here is to be able to use this book and my story to help and influence each other.

Growing up, I never took seriously the hurt and pain that a lot of Godas people go through today. It never was important to me. My life always consisted of what I wanted and the goals I wanted to achieve. It was when I moved to the city, and I felt like I was stripped of everything materialistic that I thought brought me happiness. I found out that trials, and sometimes even being without a home, caused me to have a new perspective on life. I found out that life is a gift that we tend to take advantage of. During this time in my life, God showed me that true happiness does not come from wealth and materialistic things, but from being in the peace of God. I truly became saturated in Godas peace when I started having compassion in the needs of others. As I went through these trials, I saw life from Godas perspective. He wanted me to see life through his eyes, and as I began to focus on life from God's eyes, my life started to become more clear. Through God's eyes, he views those who are hurt, and helpless, and need our attention. As you read this book, let it saturate in your heart, and you will begin Seeing the World Through the Eyes of God.

BESIMBOLIC - being deeply rooted stimulates growth. Quote by Simeon Henderson BESIMBOLIC is simply the mindset of taking life's upsets and turning them into the force which drives your success. This book "Through The Eyes of a Man" is lined with episodes from my life where I take a candid look at those challenges which should have slain me but were the bricks used to make me strong. Each lesson learned from my journey I will call a BESIMBOLIC LESSON. "Through The Eyes of a Man" is my way of reaching back to grab someone who feels as I did; hopeless, misunderstood, inferior, and ashamed and turn their life around so that they understand that they are the author and finisher of their destiny. "Through The Eyes of a Man" was written to show others that they can be successful and win despite the odds. No matter how a situation is perceived you have to believe that you are victorious and that, "You have the final say in your life!"

The moment I saw her walk through the door of Forbidden Ink, I knew she was the one. With her wide hips, thick thighs, and perfect breasts, she's every man's wet dream. Add to that her dark, soulful eyes, pouty lips, and a body covered in gorgeous art, and I knew I needed to make her mine. She's a walking contradiction of sass and strength and determination, hidden by insecurity and self-doubt. She's everything I could ever want or need, but she doesn't see what I see. I want to take away her pain. To be the one to make her laugh, to make all her dreams come true. I need to prove to her that I'm not him, that no matter what, I'll be right there beside her. Loving her. If only she could see herself through my eyes, she would understand we were made for each other.
